hello !

Not being influenced by fashion can become complicated. D.I.Y also can be, but going beyond just a hobby, you create entirely something from scratch. How many opportunities have you to start over again?

These five designers featured in this new issue were given that opportunity. They didn't care what other people said, doubts in their abilities or that stone on the path. Their dream came true. Natacha Plano has no regrets about becoming illustrator and jewelry designer, either Yanina (Pica Pau) who quit her "boring job" to make Amigurumis full-time or Vickie Howell after discovering a skein of yarn, she would have her own section on a tv program.

Planting, growing, creating and recycling. You will have the opportunity to experience all those feelings with many ideas and tutorials within these pages. From "rediscover" your closet using needles and thread, to make homemade cosmetics with plants.

Give you a chance!

Tips for crafters

Self-criticism

"You don't have to be your own critic and evaluate if what you're making is really 'apt for sale'. We're neither 'artists' nor business people, but somewhere in between. However, you have to learn to put the right price on your work."

Decision

"Keep in mind that you will work a lot more than people with a regular job. There will be no weekends, no paid vacation or anything. But if you're good at what you're doing and you like it, there is nothing better in the world."

How to crochet an amigurumi dog

By Pica Pau

Daniel is the name Yanina’s children have chosen for this amigurumi, a Jack Russell terrier of about 15 cm. It’s based on the Roberto the Dachshund pattern, the artist’s most famous crochet pattern.

web design, I proposed a part-time contract that would allow me to continue my education. And they accepted. At the same time I also worked on my blog which became more of a DIY blog every time."

This career allowed Vanessa to develop her creative activities and make them known over the Internet. It is perfectly normal today, but back then cooperation between bloggers and well-known brands didn't exist. "Today I don't work at ELLE anymore. I'm a community manager in the creative field, and at the same time I create my own things and teach DIY classes."

Vanessa is one of those crafters who feel comfortable with everything: she loves knitting ("because I can take it with me wherever I go") and embroidery with the punch needle (she learned from the well-known artist Laura Ameba); sewing seems to be the only thing she's not so good at. "I'd need four pairs of arms to do everything, but I think every craft addict knows exactly what this feels like."

Vanessa is multi-talented, she loves knitting and embroidery with the punch needle with patterns for Christmas baubles; we were enjoying making them so much, we wanted to share it with other people. Also, our Christmas designs were being sold in Comme des Garçons shops, including the one in Dover Street Market in London. They cost 80 pounds a piece, which was a big provocation. So we decided to act. Fashion can be very elitist, but knitting baubles should be something fun for everybody."

55 Christmas balls to knit, their first book published in 2011, was in the list of the most sold books in Norway for 44 consecutive weeks and was translated into 7 languages. Knitted Dolls, Knit And Crochet Garden, Norwegian Knit A Twist and others followed. To the delight of their fans, Arne and Carlos will release new projects soon. Their list of books dedicated to knitting will become longer and they will collaborate with a well-known yarn brand to develop a new range of textures and colours. Long live Arne & Carlos, the Scandinavian style and wooden houses in idyllic location!

How to make a pixel cushion

Photos & tutorial by Trapo y Tela

To put this easy patchwork technique into practice, choose any pixelated image (you can even find programmes on the internet to turn normal photos into pixelated ones). The classic cross stitch patterns also work very well, or, if you're brave and patient enough, you can design your own with the help of squared paper.

For this tutorial we have chosen a picture of the famous yellow submarine.

Hand embroidered badges

By Dorita & Debaga

When classic embroidery meets pop art, it results in these embroidered badges, perfect for spicing up jeans, caps, hats or shirts. We give the 90s look a twist by using pastel colours and ironic phrases.

Materials & Tools

- Interlining fabric
- Woven fabric
- Embroidery thread in different colours
- Embroidery frame
- Scissors
- Embroidery needle

From men's shirt to slip dress

You just need a men's shirt one size bigger than you usually wear, to create a dress that is a little unusual, with just a hint of fluorescence at the patch pocket.

From shirt to blouse with cut out shoulders

For this refashion project you will need two shirts and 50 cm of wide elastic. The result will be a blouse with cut out shoulders and very original sleeves.

From the pot to your kitchen: grow your own herbs

If you have a little backyard, you can extend you urban gardening to some bigger pots than those on you windowsill and cultivate cherry tomatoes, strawberries or even a little lemon tree. Lavender also adds a lot of value and a marvellous scent to your garden.

Go Fans Go!

María is an Archeologist totally fascinated by the mystery and history of the hand fan. She created her first collection called "Romanticidio" inspired by roadside motels in the U.S and exploration of freedom. These hand fans are designed in her Andalusian studio and made by hand in Valencia. Only the finest ingredients are used: design and high quality.

I promised myself, I'd never fall in love again, don't commit the same mistake twice but... Who can resist these stunning hand fans?
